LOCAL WOMEN ARE HAPPY WON THEIR OWN BATTLE

Have Waited for Years for Opportunity to Cast Vote and Will Take Advantage of It For Clean Politics, Says County League President

While Congratulations May Come to Those Who Voted, Fact Remains That It Was Their Refusal to be Beaten That Brought Victory

By Associated Press

MARION, O., Aug. 19.—Senator Harding declared today that the granting of suffrage to American women would be especially welcome to the Republicans in the coming campaign because a great moral and social reform recently achieved in menaced by the covert purpose of our opponents to attack it.

He predicted that voting women would stand with the Republicans through religion that I had in achieving social betterment while the Democratic party had never pushed forward in enforcing its policies. American women and Senator Harding have won their suffrage fight with an organized continuing movement covering three quarters of a century. Their victory is dramatic because it comes at the reward of a great final drive that has insured to all American women a full participation in the most crucial national election in many years. Yet important as are the issues in this political contest, we may well doubt if history will recognize any other phase as equal in importance to the fact that in this year the women of America for the first time took the full part in determining the national destiny and maintaining our national life.

Are you going to vote? was asked of Mrs. J. W. Buttermore, secretary of the branch. Am I going to vote? Well I have been working for suffrage for many years. I certainly shall vote and she.

Mrs. Buttermore said all women with whom she had talked were glad to see the end of the battle for the vote. Even the women opposed the said seemed pleased. She predicted they would line up at the polls to the others.

Mrs. A. C. Hagan of Fairmont, county chairman of the League of Women Citizens, said a statement immediately following her announcement that Tennessee had ratified the amendment relating to the extension of its franchise to women, and announced that the league would, and for clean elections and honest and efficient government.

With ratification of the amendment, the men of the League of Women Voters will be able to continue a function its leaders say.

It is expected that uniform instructions regarding the registering and enrollment of women for the fall election will be issued from Harrisburg within the next day or two. Quick work will be necessary to provide for the registration of all women by Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.

Some preliminary data requested by the state authorities in connection with the expected vote by the women in November was filled out in the commissioners' office several weeks ago and forwarded to Harrisburg.

To Americans in Olympic Games at Antwerp Have Big Advantage

By Associated Press

ANTWERP, Aug. 19.—The American team went to the fifth day of competition at the Olympic stadium today with such a lead that it seemed certain that America would be a disaster to the hosts.

With 11 events finished and only 14 remaining to be run the Americans have amassed a total of 101 out of a possible 242 points. The rest of the points are so widely distributed that the Americans make even a small showing in the remaining events they appeared to have a great advantage over all.

MARION, O., Aug. 19.—Sen. Harding was at home today to members and former members of the Ohio legislature who came to Marion for a reunion which had to be postponed on account of the accident to the long car in which he was traveling.

He told the Marion Daily Dispatch that he was unable to speak at the picnic because he was unable to get a car.

However much comes of us may be pleased with the congratulations which today assure us that we helped bring about this result, we are not content that the women won their own victory.

The long struggle against many difficulties has been a splendid preparation for the duty now imposed on them. They will be full partners in shaping national progress and policies. However there may be old political differences their finer moral sense, their social instincts, their primary concerns for home and family and health and education will be a constant inspiration to them in setting up higher and better aims in our national life.

THIRD ANNUAL REUNION OF DUNN FAMILY IS HELD

More than 300 persons attended the third annual reunion of the Dunn family held yesterday at the T. Scott Dunn homestead, now occupied by his son, W. R. Dunn and family, at Flatwoods. Because of the wide connection of the family in Fayette, Greene, Washington and Allegheny counties, the reunion was one of much prominence. Representatives from the counties named and from more distant points attended and spent the day at renewing acquaintances, relating happy reminiscences and enacting the program arranged by the committee in charge. Many of the ancestors of the Dunn family came from County Down, Ireland.

During the morning an attractive program was presented as follows: "America," prayer, Rev. Meyers of Laurel Hill; address of welcome, J. H. Dunn of Uptown; response, John Dunn of Washington County; history of the family, Sherman Dunn of Washington County; Ed Edmund Dunn of this city; address, Dr. J. O. Arnold of Philadelphia; song, "The Fortune Teller," Dunn quartet; addresses, Rev. William Anderson of Philadelphia, and John Dunn of Washington County. Interesting contests featured the program. In a target shooting contest between the relatives versus the Dunns, the former won the water-guns. In the final test T. W. Dunn of Pittsburg defeated Cooper Patterson of this place. In a pole fight between the Juniors Elsworth Dunn of Buena Vista won, J. Harold Arnold of Vanderholt won the adult's pole fight. The pole climbing prize was won by Elsworth and Harold Dunn. Clayton Rittenhouse and James Gilliland won in the horseshoe pitching contest. One of the biggest features of the day was an elaborate dinner served on the grounds about 1:30 o'clock, the menu consisting of abundance of good things prepared by the women. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Clarence Dunn of Waynesburg; vice-president, T. Scott Dunn; and Edward Dunn of Connellsville; secretary and treasurer, H. J. New Invention Makes Ford Run 34
Miles on a Gallon of Gasoline. Other Cars Show Proportionate Savings.

A new carburetor which cuts down the gasoline consumption of any motor, including the Ford, and reduces gasoline bills from one-third to one-half is the proud achievement of C. E. "Action" Armstrong, 3052 Madison St., Dayton, Ohio. This remarkable invention not only increases the power of all motors from 30 to 50 per cent but enables even to run slow on high gear. With it you can save the very heaviest grade of gasoline or half gasoline and half kerosene and still get more power and more mileage than you now get from the highest test gasoline. Many Ford owners say that now get as high as 40 or 50 miles to a gallon of gasoline. And the manufacturers of the immense savings their carburetor will make that offer to send it on 20 days trial to every car owner. As it can be put on or taken off in a few minutes by anyone, all visitors who want to try it should send their name and address and make of car to the manufacturer at once. Then also will local agents to whom they offer exceptionally large profits. Write them to day—Adv.

STORY JUSTICE FOR WOMEN.

If the action of the Tennessee legislature in ratifying the suffrage amendment is not nullified by a motion of reconsideration as is contemplated by proponents of the measure and the proposed appeal to the courts is not sustained, the women of America will have won the fight that has so long, nobly and valiantly, waged for the privilege of exercising the right to vote on all issues that are determined in the polls in all states of the union.

For this deserved recognition some what grudgingly given the women are to be congratulated. In every state beginning with Wyoming in 1869 where political equality with males has been valid the women have shown themselves in every way fit to exercise their right. The welfare of the states in which women have had the same privilege as the male electors has been promoted, reforms of great importance have been brought about, a more wholesome public spirit has been created and citizenship given a new importance and value.

With the extension of suffrage to all states it can be confidently expected that the women of the nation will have no misconception of their rights and duties and that they will discharge both with a conscientious regard for the public benefit. They will be quick to realize that the obligations as well as rights will move them just as courageously as they have met the obligations imposed upon them during all the years of their existence, iniquitously.

The nation will gain much from the enfranchisement of all women, not only because tardy justice has been rendered but because it is a privilege which they have every right and which they will exercise to the honor and glory of a country they have helped so much to make the greatest on earth.

WHY A REVISION?
The appointment of a committee of the city council to report on a proposed revision of the assessment of real properties in the city will very probably suggest to many persons the reason why a revision is in order.

The answer will of course be that the adoption of the 18th Amendment, the elimination of the saloon as a part of the hotel equipment has removed the business of running a hotel less profitable resulting in a depreciation of the property. Hence the assessment for purposes of taxation should be correspondingly reduced.

Outside of those persons interested in owners of hotel properties, the sentiment generally is that revision in assessments are neither necessary nor desirable at this time. Practically all hotel properties continue to be used in much with bars in operation for the sake of be erage which are permissible under the Volstead Act and which is currently reported are being dispensed at a good margin of profit. So far as the public is aware there has been no downward revision in the terms of rental for properties occupied under lease. If actual depreciation has been established by sales or properties rental is proper but otherwise it would be unfair to tax property holders.

Assessments as the value of a property including its improvements, not the profitability or unprofitability, of the business conducted on the item is the chief factor taken into account in fixing the assessed valuation of a business or assessment based on changes in the property would be an unwarranted departure from this rule. Moreover it would establish a precedent whereby any owner of property in the matter what its value or how desirable its location might be for some other business and occupied by a business which may be changed in character or become less profitable to the owner of the business could demand revision with respect to the same coming and logic is owners of hotels ask for it. This would open up the way for a demand for reduction in assessments every time business conditions or towards might change and would result in inequality and palpability of assessments and decided unfairness to other property owners.

Furthermore any revision in assessment of any group of properties which are worth intrinsically as much now as they were when the last general assessment was made will simply mean that in due course of time all other properties in the city

LABIAK HOLDS LEISENRING TO TWO HITS, TROTTER WINS FOURTH

Heavy Hitters of Charles Frank's Team Helpless Before Twirler.

STRIKES OUT 10 BATSMEN

Leisenring's heavy hitters were helpless before Labiak of the Trotter team Wednesday afternoon in the fourth game of the championship series between the two teams. Trotter's Leisenring and Trotter scored an easy victory, the score being 4-0. Labiak had Charles Frank's pitchers helpless in the eighth inning when he was contented for a single which did not count. Another one base hit in the ninth completed the total of 10 events won by Trotter.

Trotter scored his first run in the eighth when L. Frazier's slender double enabled Rupe to score from second. With Labiak pitching big league ball and one run chalked against them the Leisenring pavilion seemed to lose heart. Trotter added two more in the eighth inning and an other in the ninth.

The Trotter players were jubilant. "I Labiak pitched the same b and w ball in the next game between Leisenring and Trotter," said one Leisenring, "but I will not have a chance to aim.

The next game will be August 26. The Fish team has now won two games.

Webster —Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of
"Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," etc.

(Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne)

Dolores observed a gasoline launch shoot up to the landing at the foot of the companion-ladder and discharge a well-dressed, youthful white man. As he came up the companion, the purser recognized him.

"Howdy, Bill," he called.

"Hello, yourself," Mr. William Geary replied, and Dolores knew him for an American. "Do you happen to have as a passenger this trip a large, interesting person, by name John Stuart Webster?" added Billy Geary.

"I don't know, Billy. I'll look over the passenger list," and together they moved off toward his office. Dolores followed, drawn by the mention of that made name Webster, and paused in front of the purser's office to lean over the rail, ostensibly to watch the cargadores in their lighters clustering around the great ship, but in reality to learn more of the mysterious Webster.

"Blast the luck," Billy Geary growled, "the old sinner isn't here. By the way, do you happen to have a Miss Dolores Ruey aboard?"

Dolores pricked up her little ears. What possible interest could this stranger have in her going or come as?

"You picked a winner this time, Bill," she heard the purser say. "Afternoon, sixteen, boat-deck, starboard side. You'll probably find her there, packing to go ashore."

"Thanks," Billy replied and stepped out of the purser's office. Dolores turned and faced him.

"I am Miss Ruey," she announced. "I heard you asking for me." Her eyes carried the query she had not put into words: "Who are you and what do you want?" Billy saw and understood, and on the instant a wave of resolution surged over him.

So this was the vislor he had volunteered to meet aboard La Estrella, and by speechless awe and surprise intent turn her back from the port of Buenaventura to that dear old United States, which Billy suddenly recalled with poignant pain, is a sizeable country in which a young lady may very readily be lost forever. With the quick eye of youth, he noted that Dolores was perfectly wonderful in a white flannel skirt and jacket, white duck boots, white Panama hat with a gorgeous pugnace, a manish little linen collar, and a red cord-in-hand tie. From under that white hat peeped a profusion of ruddy brown hair with a slightly reddish tinge to it; her eyes were big and brown and wide apart with golden flecks in them; their glance met Billy's hungry gaze simply, directly, and with a curiosity there was no attempt to hide. Her nose was patrician; her beautiful short upper lip revealed the tips of two perfect, milk-white front teeth; she was, Billy Geary told himself, a goddess before whom all love, worthless, ornery fellows like himself should grovel and die happy, if perchance she might be minded to do so on their faces! He was aroused from his critical inventory when the hotel spoke again:

"You haven't answered my question, sir!"

"No," said Billy. "I didn't. Stupid of me, too. However, come to think of it, you didn't ask me any question. You looked it. My name is Geary—William H. Geary, by profession a mining engineer and by nature an ignoramus, and I have called to deliver some disappointing news regarding the Honorable Wilkins."

"Is she?"

"She is. Very much alive and in excellent health—or rather was the last time it was my pleasure and privilege to call on the dear lady. But she isn't in Buenaventura now." Mentally Billy asked God to forgive him his black-hearted treachery to this winsome girl. He loathed the task he had planned and loathed upon himself, and nothing but the memory of Mother Jenkins manifold kindnesses to him in a day, thanks to Jack Webster, how happily behind him could have induced him to go through to the finish.

"You Haven't Answered My Question."

"Why, where is she?" Dolores queried, and Billy could have wept at the freight in those lovely brown eyes.

He waved his hand airily. "Queen Bee," he said. "She left three weeks ago for New Orleans to visit you. I daresay you passed each other on the road—here, here, Miss Ruey, don't cry."

He took a recess of three minutes, while Dolores dabbed her eyes and went through another motion of being brave. Then he proceeded with his narrative:

"When your cablegram arrived, Miss Ruey, naturally Mrs. Wilkins was not here to receive it, and as I was the only person who had her address, the cable agent referred it to me. Under the circumstances, not knowing where I could reach you with a cable, I informed you that Mrs. Wilkins was headed for California to see you. I had no other alternative but to let matters take their course. I decided you would arrive on La Estrella, so I called to welcome you to our thriving little city, and, as a friend or about two minutes standing, to wish you away from it."

Billy's mien, as he voiced this warning, was so singularly mysterious that Dolores' curiosity was aroused instantly and was superior to her grief. "Why, what's the matter?" she demanded.

Billy looked around, as if fearful of being overheard. He lowered his voice. "We're going to have one grand little first-class revolution," he replied. "It's due to bust almost any time now, and when it does, you know, there's the submerged white tenth of Sobrante."

"Then my passenger must call to see no here?" Billy nodded. "When will you bring her here?"

Billy reflected that Mother Jenkins had been up rather late the night before and that trade in the cantina of El Buen Amigo had been unusually brisk; so since he desired to exhibit the old lady at her best, he concluded it might be well to spare for wind.

"Tomorrow at 10," he declared.

Dolores inhaled her head, something told her she had better save all future details to the amiable Wilkins.

"I remember you inquired for your friend, Mr. Webster, when you came aboard the steamer."

"I remember it, too," Billy countered. "I can't imagine what's become of him. Miss Ruey, did you ever go to meet the only human being in the world and discover that for some mysterious reason, he failed to keep the appointment?" Miss Ruey, you'll have to meet old John Stuart the minute he lights in Buenaventura. He's some boy."

"Old John Stuart?" she queried.

"How old?"

"Oh, thirty-nine or forty on actual count, but one of the kind that will live to be a thousand and then have to be killed with an axe. He's coming to Buenaventura to help me put over a mining deal."

"How interesting, Mr. Geary! No wonder you were disappointed."

The last sentence was a half deliberately launched; to Dolores' delight it made a keyhole in Billy Geary's heart.

"Don't get me wrong, Miss Ruey, I hastened to assure her. "I have a good mind, but I'd trade it for a hand-shake from Jack! The good Lord only published one edition of Jack, and I hunted the edition to one volume; then the plates were melted for the junk we call the human race. Two weeks ago, when I was six and penniless and despairing, the possessor of a concession on a fortune, but without a centavo in my pockets to buy a banana, when I was a veritable beach-comber and existing on the charity of Mother Jenkins, I managed finally to communicate with old Jack and told him where I was and—what I had. There's no answer, Miss Ruey, and I am not ashamed of you. But when I got it I cried like a kid!" And Billy headed her John Stuart Webster's remarkable cablegram, the receipt of which had, for Billy Geary, transformed eight days of purgatory into paradise. Dolores read it.

"No wonder you love him," she declared, and added artfully, "His wife must simply adore him."

"He has no wife to bother his life, so he pushes her own 'ace'—"

The saw movement in coke production which continued with clock like regularity during the months of June and July seem to have halted. At least there have been two weeks in succession during which gains have been registered in lead of the up and down courses of an increase one week being followed by a decrease the next and that in turn by a gain. The result of the continued gains has been to push the total over the 200,000 tons mark for the first time since the railroad strike in April stopped what was then apparently a steady upward trend in coke production.

The quick to pass the region made to improved coal supplies during the week ended August 1 when production was 21,000 tons greater than the preceding week showed the preparedness of the producers to meet any inevitable turn in the tide. Last week with condition somewhat better including an increase of six per cent in the coal supply the second a increase in the series reached the still more respectable figure of 25,000 tons. This has pushed the total to 21,100 tons which is the best total in a single week since April 10 and within 1,000 tons of the corresponding week of last year.

As during the earlier week the largest proportion of the gain in production was at the plants of the furnace interests, this is due in part to an increase of 60 in the number of active furnace ovens and the inevitable securing of the H. F. C. & Coke company through the ownership of an equipment of an important part of it product by but the merchant plants generally more nearly approached a six per cent increase although one important operator made but four days. A few more days and the bulk were active during all the working days of the week.

While the coal distribution on Monday and Tuesday was not quite up to the allotment made on the same day of the week preceding indications are that the week as a whole will maintain the average of last week perhaps

SKIN DISEASES

ARE EXPILLED QUICKLY BY AN ANTISEPTIC APPLICATION

The application should also be healing. Doesn't your sound judgment tell you that this is true? The Connellsville Drug Co. and the Indianapolis Drug Co. sell a salve called S.M.C.O. which is an antiseptic application that just fills the bill. It does not soil the skin, yet it is a most powerful antiseptic and an active healing ointment. Extra salt, rheum, butter and similar skin affectants disappear with the aid of S.M.C.O. SALVE or the Connellsville Drug Co. or the Broadway Drug Co. Scottsdale, who are the agents, are authorized to return to you the purchase price.

The price is so favorable trifling it is not to be considered. S.M.C.O. SALVE is so healing and so powerful an antiseptic that it is a mighty good investment for the open sore which you thought was incurable.

Nothing like a M.C.O. SALVE for rubbing treatment.
